STRAND THEATRE

Saturday, Edgar Rice Burroughs' "Tarzan of the Golden Lion." The most romantic, thrilling, best-beloved character created in the last decade. Every boy and girl, every grown-up knows and loves Tarzan. His name is as well known as Hamlet. A picture that is as different as it is amazing. A picture of high adventure and unbelievable romance amid the silent jungles of Darkest Africa. "My Kid" is a juvenile comedy like Our Gang. The News Weekly and Scenic, "Dancing Around the World," Sunday and Monday. Harry Langan in "Long Pants," an overnight jump from swaddling clothes to swaggering clothes. Instead of sitting on his mother's lap there are five pretty girls ready to sit on his. What a tailor's bill, but he'd rather have two beautiful arms around his neck than one sharp crease in his new long pants. It is just one of those pictures that will make you feel good for a week after. Fables and "Wide Open Faces," a Graves' comedy.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Johnny Hines in "Stepping Along." Johnny steps into a ton of trouble when he steps out as an East Side politician. He grafts enough laughs to swing a dozen popularity contests. You'll vote it the jazziest comedy of the year. See the Charleston up-to-date, and the Black Bottom as stepped by Broadway's loveliest Scandals' chorus. It is full of speed and pep. The News Weekly and "George's Many Loves," comedy.

Thursday and Friday, Rex Ingram's "The Magician" with Alice Terry. The girl he loved was helpless in the hypnotic power of a half-mad magician, and then in a scene of smashing thrills and dramatic power he risked his very life to free her from the evil spell. The picture is crammed with beauty, heart throbs, unforgettable climaxes!

The fifth chapter of "The Fire Fighters" and "Dummy Love" comedy.

Past Revived By Photo Series

KRAFT'S EXHIBIT GIVES VIVID VIEWS OF OLD OCEAN BEACH

Fred H. Kraft has placed an exceptionally interesting exhibit in one of the large show windows on the Newport avenue frontage of the Kraft drug store. It is a series of four pictures in one strip showing the chief shore section of Ocean Beach, photographed over a quarter of a century ago by A. N. Loring. Conspicuous in the picture is a frame structure then occupied by Capt. Thomas as a refreshment place on the site where the Silver Spray plunge is now located. The small white house on Bacon street in the rear of the Kraft building is also shown standing as at present, while the two-story house now occupied by Charles Pelteher and his family is a dominating feature of the wide landscape. The present sheds and big trees in the rear of Faber's Little Cash Grocery on Newport avenue have remained the same during the passing thirty years, while the seashore bluffs are shown void of buildings and old ocean surging in its accustomed way.

THE PEN MIGHTIER THAN THE SWORD

As members of the fourth estate, we naturally subscribe to the statement that the pen is mightier than the sword, and in this connection the Publishers' Auxiliary adds the argument submitted recently by Cattle Rustler Pete, who is now at home in the Kansas penitentiary:

I stole a steer and got in here.
They put my clothes in hock.
No use to kick, I got a pick
And started mining rock.
While rooting round one day I found
A cutlass old but stout.
I hid it well within my cell
And started digging out.
For weeks I strained with might and main
To tunnel through the wall,
I drilled and bored with that old sword,
But had no luck at all.
Then, sad to say, my tool one day
Snapped off 'e'en as I bored,
And there and then I knew the pen
Was mightier than the sword.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

State Controller Ray L. Riley has made public his annual report on the financial transactions of municipalities, counties and the state which shows that these political subdivisions increased their bonded indebtedness $62,616,972.60 during the fiscal year 1926. "Extensive municipal enterprises," declared Riley, commenting on the bonds voted, "confronting several of the larger cities of the state in developing water supplies and possible extension of municipal enterprises would seem to require a conservation of bond capacity. There is no evidence of retrenchment and on the contrary every political subdivision of the state is continually increasing its bonded indebtedness out of line with increased property values."

Full blame for the crash which sent the Golden Gate ferry Golden City to the bottom of San Francisco bay on the night of April 24 was placed on the shoulders of Captain Aamen Johnson, master of the ferry, in a verdict announced by Captain Frank Turner and Captain Joseph Dolan. United States steamship inspectors. Suspension of his license for six months, was the penalty imposed on Johnson. He was convicted of negligent inattention to duty in driving his craft full speed ahead through a dense fog. The master of the McCormick steamship Newport, with which the Golden City collided, was exonerated of all blame in the inspectors' report of their investigation.

Fifty-one days of horror and intense suffering in the desert, during which he kept alive by eating reptiles and drinking poisonous water, ended for J. W. Saferight, 53, an oil prospector from Los Angeles, when he was found last week by two cowboys and brought to Santa Barbara. Saferight was looking for some oil shale deposits when he drank from a spring near Los Olivos, 50 miles from Santa Barbara, which is reputed to be poisonous. Within a few minutes the prospector became so ill he swooned. When he recovered consciousness he was too ill and weak to move more than a few feet from the spring and his camping equipment.

One of the famous song successes of modern times, "Lay My Head Beneath A Rose," was written thirty-seven years ago by Grant Falkenstein, veteran musician of Fresno, as part of the score of an amateur minstrel show given in Ventura, Calif. Falkenstein is now the trainer and director of the state champion Scouts' Band of Fresno. Dimly he remembers that he wrote it in a hurry to fill the needs of an amateur bass singer and that the theme was suggested by the dying wish of a young California landscape gardener who in his dying hour asked his friends to "Lay my head beneath a rose." The song has recently been popularized by radio broadcasting.

Returning to the methods of the padres and Indians of early day California, Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Smith of Marysville will construct their country home in Sutter county of heavy rammed earthen walls and partitions. Figuring that such a building is adapted especially to the California climate, the Smiths will have walls 12 to 18 inches thick. The earth, of a proper consistency of clay and sand, while slightly damp is placed in forms, a few inches at a time and tamped hard, additional layers being put on until the required height is reached. Tiling will be used on the roof, which will be of mission style.

Jesse James himself—not a motion picture—has been admitted to the California Bar. Jesse is the original Jesse James' son—the Jesse James whose two guns scared many a stage coach driver out of a year's growth, who robbed and shot, and was slain. The present-day Mr. James has put aside his father's two guns and uses in their stead equally effective, if not as deadly, law books for his persuaders. Attorney James was but 6 years old when a bullet stopped his father's career of banditry. He has practiced law for twenty-five years in the Middle West and is in Los Angeles for his health.

Despite the fact that she is nearing four score years, Mrs. Emma C. Mabie, pioneer Trinity county prospectress, has not given up hope that she will yet find the pot of gold in the mine of which she has long dreamed. But her hopes in connection with the Brown Bear claim, near Deadwood, she admits, have been disappointed. So loading up her pick and shovels on her faithful burro she has departed elsewhere. Mrs. Mabie learned her first lessons in mining at the age of seven from her father back in the fifties.

Father Serra was the Franciscan missionary who founded the missions in California, while Rev. King was a Unitarian minister who played a prominent part in saving this state to the Union during the Civil War.

Editor Adam Grant's Daughter

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

OLD Adam Grant, editor and proprietor of one of the great Western newspapers, never wanted it said of him that he gave preference to any member of his own family—in the matter of positions on his staff.

That was why his lovely daughter, Eve, found herself established in a small flat in New York, surrounded by and observing the contents of a hundred and one magazines. Laboriously and very intelligently she was studying the world of fiction from the magazine standpoint.

"When you've mastered the analytical sense and can express it in words that convey your meaning to the readers of my paper—then and only then can you have a position on my staff," Old Adam had told Eve. "If you stay at home here among your friends you won't get anywhere. Hop off to New York for a year and pack that pretty head of yours with first-hand knowledge."

Aunt Clem, her mother's sister, who had come along with her, bored at times into reading the personals in the papers, came across the advertisement that gave her an idea.

It read, "Old magazines wanted by writer." Aunt Clem answered the advertisement and left a huge bundle of magazines to be called for.

Not by the proverbial candle, but beside a well-lighted table, young Avery Weldon carried on his as yet embryonic authorship. But he was working desperately hard to succeed and was reading fiction in the magazines voraciously in order to get a drift with the market.

That was how the huge pile of old magazines happened to be on the floor beside him. He couldn't quite afford to buy all the new ones and his advertisement had brought him many.

Avery scanned the title pages and sat up and rumbled back that smooth gold hair.

"By jove! This is funny!" Beside the title of the stories were fine marginal notes of criticism, couched in terse but most expressive language.

"Medium. Not bad. Piffle. No point. Wishy-washy. Very good. Why was it given space? Doesn't know men. Needs to study women."

Avery swiftly picked up the publications that had printed his own work and with a somewhat shrinking heart opened the page. Yes, there beside his own story which he had in a moment of stupidity called "Rose of the Desert" he saw the words, "Author in the making, but sadly lacking the human touch."

Avery puffed a bit furiously at his pipe. The nail was hit straight on the head. Avery knew that. A kindly editor had only recently suggested the same thing.

And because a real author must not be strictly conventional or too awfully bound by laws of society, Avery got up, put on his hat and strolled toward the apartment building from whence his magazines had arrived.

The elevator took him up to the fifth floor and there left him. And in another few moments he was standing at an opened door. Aunt Clem herself was out, but Eve had answered his ring.

Avery didn't know what to say now that he was there and with Eve's calm eyes gazing at him he felt that he made rather a sorry story of the incident of buying the old magazines.

But Eve was very nice about it and invited him in.

"I didn't even know my aunt had cleared them out," she said as he followed her into a magazine-strewn room.

"I wanted so desperately to chat with the critic who had jotted those remarks down that I chanced coming here," he said, boyishly. "My dad has given me a year to make good in story writing, bless him," he went on, seeing the kindling interest in Eve's eyes, "and I believe if you'd be so good as to help me, with criticism I could win out."

"I know you could," was Eve's unexpected reply. "I see it somewhere in the deep places of your stories—I would love to help you."

She told him then about her own dad and who he was and all about home, and Avery laughed. Then he pulled a frayed letter from his pocket—a letter written some six months before, and handed it to her.

"Avery, my boy," it ran, "while you're messing about with your writing, just take time to look up Old Adam Grant's daughter. She's gone to New York to make good, too. Fine girl, too, from what her dad says, but then perhaps I say the same to Grant, about my boy—" Eve read no further until she had cast accusing eyes at Avery.

"I like that! Six whole months and you've never even taken the trouble—"

"And darn glad I am, too," said Avery. "If I knew you all this time I doubt if a single story would have left the typewriter—I should have been bumped into a dream so glorious I—oh, I say, Eve, when do we go back home—I'm longing for the time when I can get down to hard work and make use of all this study to do the big work that only you can help me with."

Aunt Clem came in and smiled—she knew a thing or two.

Checked Silks Are Now Popular; Simplicity in Graduating Frock

FROCKS of "gingham-silk" are the smart thing for this summer. These taffeta weaves, so called because of their gingham patterning, especially exploit checks and plaids. A "just arrived" gingham-silk dress is pictured here. Not only its material but its fashioning is the "last word." The surprise opening for the bodice bespeaks the new trend, also the overskirt effect which appears in quite a few of the newer modes. The stylist also employs solid colors for the flower-like choux of taffeta at the simplicity does it create a pleasing impression. Now that sheer white materials are so in vogue, there is every opportunity of either making or buying "ready-to-wear" a charming graduating dress, such as will set off those "endearing young charms" of the daughter of the household to perfection.

White georgette is a most excellent selection for the graduating frock. It is exquisitely dainty, and as to service, that is one of its chief recommendations. It launders beautifully.

Pretty Gingham-Silk Dress.

walstline, to which little flare cuffs are matched.

Black or navy with white are outstanding for these practical afternoon checked taffeta frocks. For dressier wear there is also a considerable showing of pastel shades with white. Prominent among these are yellow with white, green with white and some which are very attractive for children and growing girls are bright red-and-white checks.

Smart, indeed, and ideal for summer wear is the two-piece dress which styles its skirt and sleeveless jacket of checked taffeta, the blouse being either of washable white crepe or sheer white cotton voile. If this lingerie blouse displays a jabot, also a generous amount of fagoting or yet never has the appearance of a wash dress, and for little Miss Sixteen it will prove a most charming dance frock all through the summer season.

Very prettily and girlishly styled is this white georgette dress pictured to the left. Sleeveless is this little frock. The ruffles on the skirt are arranged in tiers, for the tiered effect is one of the mode's pet hobbies this season. There is just the faintest blush of pink in the satin ribbon rosette posed on the shoulder.

A trifle more elaborate is the dress of crepe de chine to the right. It is all in pure white even to the ribbon at neckline and waistline. This lovely frock subscribes to the reigning lace Vogue in that rows and rows of narrow hand-drawn hemstitching, so much the better from a fashion standpoint.

Designers are doing some amusing things with the new gingham-silks by combining plaids or checks of one coloring with those of another. A black-and-white check bordered with a red-and-white check is stunning. The same may be said of polka dots, which, by the way, are in smart fashion again. For instance, a large navy-and-white polka dot is trimmed with tiny-dotted tan and white. There is no end to the novelty which can be achieved by following out this line of thought.

Only when the dress of the "sweet girl graduate" accents the note of edging run a scalloped course around the slightly bouffant skirt. The lace in rows about the neckline suggests a yoke effect.

Emphasis is again placed on organdie for the summer frock. It is thought that this material will repeat the wonderful vogue it enjoyed some few seasons ago. Cunning and quaint are June file frocks made of this material, with basque bodices and full skirts in sleeveless style. Some of the skirts have tiers of ribbons, others are bordered with lace, in which event there is apt to be a yoke and cap-sleeves of the lace.

Extreme of Cold Not

Found at the Poles

The coldest spot in the world is not at the earth's poles. The lowest temperature experienced in the North by Amundsen was 51 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. In the Antarctic, the lowest temperatures have not been much in excess of this figure.

East of a line drawn from the mouth of the River Ob to Lake Balkal, the subsoil is always frozen even in the height of summer. In the northern part of this immense region is the town of Verkhoyansk, which is the world's coldest spot. In January the average temperature is minus 60 degrees Fahrenheit, or 92 degrees of frost. In July, however, the average temperature is quite warm, at nearly 60 degrees Fahrenheit, so that, between the two extremes, the mercury in the thermometer actually moves 120 degrees. Not only is Verkhoyansk the coldest spot on earth, but it also experiences the sharpest difference between the summer and winter temperature.

The occasional use of Roman Eye Balsam at night will prevent and relieve tired eyes and eye strain. 372 Pearl St., N. Y. Adv.

Electricity Found Aid to Duration of Life

Every child born today has the prospect of living five-sixteenths of a year longer than if born in 1911, according to figures recently compiled. Undoubtedly this remarkable result has been brought about by better living conditions, through modern science and education. Despite the intense speed of Twentieth century life, with its tension and dangers to the nervous system, life is easier than ever before in the history of the world, and the natural result is longer life.

That electricity has played an important part in bringing this about is unquestioned. It has made industrial working conditions immeasurably better by supplying good light, by making ventilation easier and more effective, by providing a simple form of power. It has revolutionized domestic labor, with its elimination of tedious, nerve-racking, back-breaking tasks through the medium of the modern electric appliance.

Airplane as Fire Fighter

In locating forest fires and directing attack, what better auxiliary could have been designed for the rangers' help than the swift and free-flying airplane?

When the judge is unlearned, it is the robe we bow to.

Takes Out all pain instantly

CORNS

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads stop all pain quicker than any other known method. Takes but a minute to quiet the worst corn. Healing starts at once. When the corn is gone it never comes back. If new shoes make the spot "touchy" again, a Zino-pad stops it instantly. That's because Zino-pads remove the cause—pressing and rubbing of shoes.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads are medicated, antiseptic, protective. At all druggists and shoe dealers—35c.

IN OCEAN BEACH

Business Directory—Alphabetically Arranged—
Service for "Strangers Within Our Gates"

OCEAN BEACH is famous as San Diego's greatest residential seaside community and is situated only six miles from the metropolitan district, with which it is connected by fast electric railway service and the paved coast highway. It is the most thriving and populous section of the peerless Point Loma peninsula, with ideal climate, wonderful productive soil and scenery unsurpassed. Wide avenues lead from the heights to the seashore and nearly all streets are paved and sidewalked, with a complete paving program in progress from the bay frontage to beautiful Sunset Cliffs. Ornamental lights adorn the main business section, while modern commercial structures and fine new homes, cottages and bungalow courts are constantly in course of construction. This delightful suburb has exceptionally good schools, churches, civic clubs, mail carrier service and all that makes life really worthwhile as is well attested by the appended list of prominent and progressive business interests:

New CALIFORNIA THEATER

A galloping romance is the way someone has described "Naughty But Nice," the most recent First National Picture bringing Colleen Moore to the screen of the New California theatre for one week starting today.

That's just what it is, "galloping romance."

Sometimes, however, a gallop seems too slow a pace for this love comedy, for it gathers momentum with each scene until it has everyone sitting on the edge of his seat.

The skill and charm with which Miss Moore has invested her role are certain to appeal to everyone who sees the picture because she has brought to the characterization of "Berenice Summers" all the vivacity, insouciance, willful youthfulness and sympathy in scenes of dramatic intensity that have made her known and loved wherever motion pictures are exhibited.

Neither last nor least, "Naughty
But Nice" introduces Donald Reed, one of the handsomest, most manly appearing men seen on the screen in years. Reed plays the leading male role opposite Colleen and plays it with fine feeling.

Katherine McGuire is beautiful as Colleen's school chum, while Clarissa Selwynne is excellent as the suspicious principal. Incidentally Colleen and Miss McGuire wear very beautiful frocks.

On the stage, Fanchon and Marco present the liveliest aggregation of entertainers seen this season, in "Pep Idea", an entertainment filled with fast music, dances and capers, lead by George Givot, Ziegfeld Follies comedian, and including Mitchell and Durant, dancers.

Milt Franklyn, the New California's newest musical director occupies the feature spot this week, with his introduction to San Diego audiences.
Known over the entire West Coast circuit as one of the most versatile of guest conductors, Franklyn, will be given full sway in presenting his most original and unique ideas.

BALBOA THEATRE

The Balboa theatre is to be henceforth known as a vaudeville and motion picture playhouse, with Carr Brothers Band, one of the high feature attraction, starting this week, with programs changing every Thursday.

"The Sunset Derby," will be the first motion picture feature, with William Collier, Jr., and Mary Astor in the leading roles.

Crammed with swiftly moving action, interspersed with a delightful vein of light comedy, and possessing two mile-a-minute horse races unsurpassed on the screen for realism, speed and thrills, the First National picture, "The Sunset Derby," is screen entertainment plus.

Mary Astor and Wm. Collier, Jr., as the young lovers, make a delightful team in the featured roles, and both contribute performances which merit

the highest praise.

Ralph Lewis and Lionel Belmore as the livery stable owner and the service station proprietor, contribute the comedy with their good-natured business feud, and, in addition, add a few scenes which are highly dramatic. David Kirby, Burt Ross, Henry Barrows, Michael Visaroff and others are in the supporting cast.

A striking feature of "The Sunset Derby" is the fact that it is highly thrilling and possesses many dramatic moments without once touching melodrama with the familiar movie "villain."

The deft handling of the story, and particularly the womanlike direction of the racing scenes, merits Albert Rogell, the director, a great deal of praise.

Herb Hoey, who is probably one of the youngest master of ceremonies to introduce the new entertainers at the Balboa theatre this week, which includes the Carr Brothers Band and a cast of vaudeville entertainers who hold enviable positions in the entertainment field.

ELABORATE AFFAIR

Miss Dorothy Harrison of 1968 De Foe street entertained the members of the Komo sorority of State college at a Japanese dancing party at the Ocean Beach Masonic hall Saturday evening, June 18.
Black and orange, the sorority colors, were used as decorations along with many flowers, Japanese parasols and incense. Miss Jean Harrison, dressed in a blue and pink flowered kimono, met the guests at the door and presided over the punch bowl. Clifford Harrison, brother of the hostess, had general charge of the party, and assisted his sister. The music was provided by the Strand Radio shop, but the electricity being low, fortunately the piano, saxophone and phonograph helped out. There were several Japanese prizes awarded during the evening. The prize waltz was a tie between Helen Tattersoll and Joe Vurgason and Gladys Hitt and William Patterson, so each couple was given a prize. The prize Berkeley was won by Ruth Varney and Karl Busch. Coy Van Doren won in the game of musical chairs. Miss Pearl Jensen managed to retain her ankle balloon unbroken longest and received a prize.

Mrs. D. V. Harrison, mother of the hostess and Mrs. Bessie Harrison, mother of our Japanese guest, acted as patronesses.

YOURSELF and YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

LIVING MACHINERY

Or How the Parts of Our Bodies Are Put Together—and What They Are Made of.

IN OUR family, a wandering life separates us much from the children, but at last a holiday together, on the beautiful shores of Lake Champlain, offered us the chance we needed.

"How would you like a talk about how we see, and hear, and smell, and move, and think, and eat, and breathe?" I volunteered one day.

The spontaneity of the reply left no room for doubt about their approval, and so I continued:

"This is far the most wonderful story in the world. The body is the only real automatic machinery in the world. Moreover, the units make their own rules; choose some to govern the rest, while they train others to do all the repairing, feeding, draining, tending the pumps, and manufacturing of everything needed from a drain-pipe to a seeing-machine. They do all their own cleaning. They keep their own police and maintain armies to protect the whole machine. There is nothing they do not do.

"First, there is anatomy. It shows us how blood pumps are made, how the frame is built up, how the wires and central office are placed, how one part of the machinery is fitted to the next, how the fuel is turned into power, how the drains are arranged for, and how the whole lot of living things makes one great big living giant machine, which can see to walk about, scent danger, test the fuel as it goes in, know things by the feel of them, memorize facts, and become what we call a 'living man.' We must also know how the machinery gives, receives, and acts on intelligent orders.

"Besides all this, we want to know what each part is built up of and how it does its work, and how the various parts work together, like the transportation system, the supply system, and the system for dealing with garbage.

"However, even such fine machines as go together to make up what we call our bodies do at last get out of repair and old, and then they have a 'breakdown,' like the engine of the motor car. So we must learn to know what has gone wrong. This is called pathology.

"The bricks from which we build the body are called cells.

"The cells get together into groups just like manufacturing companies; and they are the wisest companies ever formed—small as they are. One lot enables us to have thoughts. The brain is our thought factory and also our general headquarters, with the generals, staff officers, and orderlies.

"The cells unite for every sort of work; to make glass like the front of the eye, or strings to catch sounds as in the ear, or taste-buds to warn us of dangerous things in our mouths which we must not swallow, or, on the other hand, to help us enjoy good food, or to digest what we eat, as the stomach, liver, and pancreas cells do. Some cells unite to tie things together, like ligaments, or to keep them from bumping, like elastic tissue buffers.

"Some cells, like coral animals, build the framework up, such as bone, and others form the engines to move it about, like muscle-cells; some build the pipes for circulating streams; some keep those pipes clean; some carry oxygen down the pipes to burn up and give the machine its horsepower; some carry food down the pipes, others bring materials for building. Some are policemen who catch burglars, or fight enemies, as soldiers do. Some build the skin as a rampart to protect the outside and keep it in repair; others cover it with hair to keep it warm.

"The most important of all the cells are called germ-cells. They are like the seed-cells which make new flowers, or the egg-cells which make new birds and fishes. Why, we even have pirate cells, which are good cells to begin with, only they have turned pirates and kill and rob the others—and then there are the most awful battles you ever heard of.

"You can see them, enlarged ever so many times, in the motion-pictures. Sometimes these fights are with pirates like the tumor cells or the cancer-cells, and sometimes with regular invading armies called spirochaetes, like dragons or snakes. You will surely want to see the brave White cells fighting to the death, and never sparing themselves, gladly dying to save the others. They never seem to need calling twice. There is one special lot that only sprinkles poison, like the poison-gas brigade, to kill the enemy; and one White regiment which does nothing but carry away the dead and clean up the battle-field when it is over."

Remember There Are Gray Hairs in Tunes

A profound philosopher once remarked that "a man is as old as the tunes he whistles," and every man past forty who reads the line will feel a shocked realization of its truth.

For there are gray hairs in tunes as well as in heads, and they have a close affiliation. There is a sentimental link between tunes of the past and silencing locks—or no locks at all.

The Grand Army veteran whistled "Marching Through Georgia" when he was a youth, and he still whistles it. The Spanish war veteran whistled "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," when he was young, and he still whistles it.

The veteran of the World war whistles "Over There," and he will probably keep on whistling it until he finally passes "over there." And so it goes, thus proving the truth of that profound philosopher's observation.

Only this morning we caught ourself whistling "Silver Threads Among the Gold." But in our case there could be no connection, of course, assuredly there are no silver threads running amongst the gold on our dome—at least, there were none that we could see yesterday morning when we finished pulling out all we could find with our shaving mirror and a pair of tweezers.

We had heard that tune on the radio the night before and so it was running in our head, but suddenly recalling the observation of the aforementioned profound philosopher, we quickly switched our whistle to "Hello, Bluebird."

We are glad to pass along this little tip to all our fellow men. Quit whistling "Old Hundred" and tune in with the Blue Birds! It's lots more sensible than wearing a red necktie and a pink hatband.—Holyoke Transcript.

Modern Warfare Just Slaughter and Filth

The anatomy of the battles of Verdun and the Somme was the same. A battlefield had been selected. Around this battlefield walls were built—double triple, quadruple—of enormous cannon. Behind these railways were constructed to feed them, and mountains of shells were built up. All this was the work of months.

Thus the battlefield was completely encircled by thousands of guns of all sizes, and a wide oval space prepared in their midst. Through this awful arena all the divisions of each army, battered ceaselessly by the enveloping artillery, were made to pass in succession, as if they were the teeth of interlocking cog-wheels grinding each other.

For month after month the ceaseless cannonade continued at its utmost intensity, and month after month the gallant divisions of heroic human beings were torn to pieces in this terrible rotation. Then came the winter, pouring down rain from the sky to clog the feet of men, and drawing veils of mist before the hawk eyes of their artillery. The arena, as used to happen in the Coliseum in those miniature Roman days, was flooded with water. A vast sea of ensanguined mud, churned by thousands of vehicles, by hundreds of thousands of men and millions of shells, replaced the blasted dust.

Still the struggle continued. Still the remorseless wheels revolved. Still the auditorium of artillery roared. At last the legs of men could no longer move; they wallowed and floundered helplessly in the slime. Their food, their ammunition lagged behind them along the smashed and choked railways.—From "The World Crisis, 1918," by Winston Churchill.

SCHOOL DAYS

Mother's Cook Book

Look to your health, and if you have it, praise God and value it next to a good conscience; for health is a second blessing that mortals are capable of—a blessing that money cannot buy.—Isaac Walton.

WORK AND PLAY

THE one who said "that house-work was powerful constant" knew what he was talking about, for it is the work that greets you with the rising sun and does not cease at the going down of the same.

As the most valuable and least regarded of all possessions is good health, and the strength which goes with it, the wise housewife will choose which are the really worth while things that must be attended to, letting the others take their turn in being done, as to the most important.

With the multiplicity of duties which today confront the housewife and as over 80 per cent of us are doing our own housework without the aid of a maid, and a large per cent without even a laundress, the saving of strength is a large item to the house mother who is so invaluable in the home.

She who can use the energy she would spend on scrubbing a floor, in studying the problem of keeping within the family budget and serving wholesome attractive meals, not only helps herself, but improves her home. Unfortunately floors must be cleaned, but a well and carefully mopped floor can be cleaned in half the time it takes to scrub it, and a floor can be very much soiled before the neighbors will notice it.

The woman who wastes her energy doing things because she has always done them, or it was the way her mother did them, needs some lessons in loyalty to her family, for times have changed, and none of us wish to fall behind in the march of progress.

A schedule is a valuable aid in work, but no schedule can be followed in any iron-clad way. Circumstances alter cases, never get so tied up in system that you cannot put your rising bread in the ice chest or cellar, or leave the dishes in the sink, in case of an important duty.

We all know capable and fine women who do certain things on certain days, though the heavens fall. Would such a woman leave her work to take an hour or two in the open air or the woods, if invited for a ride? More than likely not, for she must finish the ironing or clean the silver.

In many homes the mother says it is much easier to do the work herself than to try to teach the bungling little ones who love to work. It is not fair to them nor to herself not to let them share in the household tasks. The tiny two-year-old can be taught and will love to do it, many little step-savers, like putting away their toys and hanging up their own wraps. This training will help them all through life in many ways, giving them orderly minds and trained hands.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE PLEASANT WAY

IF YOU are given to serious reflections, seeking through them to get at the basic principles which have so much to do with the shaping of our destinies, the making of our joys and sorrows, you will find when you delve deeply into these things that the power of choosing is all your own.

It is your privilege to do as you may please, to select your own course and follow without interference from others the bent of your inclinations.

It is for you to assume the responsibilities and accept the reward or punishment which is sure to follow. The very indifference and abandonment with which most of us go about this sober work is often pathetic. We seem unconscious of the gravity of our position, giving it but a fleeting thought which we are apt to forget in moments of impulsive emotion, and thus make our most serious troubles.

Instead of moving in the natural, pleasant way, we make deliberate detours through fields of thorns and rocks, where we are scratched and bruised, and come up scowling on the side where the road is frowning and forbidding.

As we view the prospect, there rushes into our hearts an uncontrollable sense of bitterness, a sort of hatred against all mankind, including our dearest and most intimate friends, but seldom a thought do we have of condemning ourselves.

We elect at such time to antagonize, rather than to conciliate, not caring a whit whether we make friends or enemies. And in this obstinate attitude of mind, we beat around the bush like mad beasts, instead of souls invested with the divine spark and power to think and reason.

It is this abhorrent spirit which is retarding the world in progress, enslaving men in selfishness, putting the torch of war to inflammable passions and robbing us of faith, without which neither nation nor individual can long endure in peace.

By an overt act or two, goodly fellowships can be broken forever, yet how many of us think of this until we are left destitute and in our destitution we comprehend the result of a folly which, alas, was of our own making, beginning at the moment when we stubbornly turned our back upon the pleasant way and blindly chose the opposite.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"CARRYING COALS TO NEW CASTLE"

TO GIVE a hat to a milliner, to carry flowers to a garden or salt to the sea, to give anyone something of which he already has a goodly supply, is described as "carrying coals to Newcastle."

This phrase, so popularly used in common parlance today, goes to England for its origin. The reference is to the city of Newcastle-Upon-Tyne, the great coal center of the Northumberland and Durham regions. It received its name in the Eleventh century from the fact that Robert, eldest son of William the Conqueror, began, in 1097 or 1080, to build a castle there. And located in the center of a district rich in coal it became famous early in its history as a great coal-distributing center. Hence, "Carrying coals to Newcastle."

The hairnet industry in Chefoo, China, kept 17,000 women and girls busy in 1921, but now only about 2,000 make a living at this work. (Copyright.)

Make Your Dreams Come True

By SYDNEY J. BURGOWNE

I WOULDN'T give two cents for the man Who didn't have a "DREAM." A vision toward which to work and plan, And not to drift with the stream.

But it isn't enough to dream, and sit Just planning—there's work to do, And you've got to pitch in and tackle it To make that dream come true.

Or while you are dreaming, the other chap Is going to sail in and win, And write his name all over the map That you had the chance to begin.

It's easier—sure!—to sit around And simply dream away The days and years—but I've never found Any joy in the easiest way

So roll up your sleeves with a smile and say:

"There's right where I start in To make my own dream true TODAY, And I'll be the one to win!"

So DREAM—by all means—but then go out

And hustle the whole day through, And then there won't be the slightest doubt

About making your dreams come true.

So here's to the man who buckles in With vigor—and so succeeds In being happy and able to grin— As he turns his "dream" to DEEDS! (Copyright.)

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Sir John Martin Harvey Had a Hard Time With Sir Henry Irving.

AT TWENTY-ONE I was with Sir Henry Irving, with whom I remained for fourteen years. He taught me all I know, and looking back upon the path I have traveled I realize how stupid I must have been in my early days. I remember my pride when I was selected for the part of the attendant in "Much Ado About Nothing," the first play I appeared in at the Lyceum. I had no words to speak but I determined that I would impress Sir Henry in particular and the public in general, with the attire of that messenger.

"At that time I prided myself upon my taste in clothes. I had become a sort of incipient Beau Brummel. I went out and bought a feather. It was a wonderful feather—a dream of youthful vanity. I went further. Mustaches had a certain fascination for me so I painted on my upper lip what to my mind was a beautiful mustache.

"Alas for the dreams of youth: No sooner did Sir Henry catch sight of me than he pointed a long, lean forefinger and with that dreadful preliminary, 'Ha-hem!' of his, growled, 'Take out that boy!' I fear I must have offended his artistic eye, as I did at another rehearsal when, being slightly out of place, he rapped out, 'Don't stand there—get back—get back. You are like a cabbage in the foreground of a beautiful landscape.'—Martin Harvey.

TODAY—Martin Harvey has reached a position where he can look back with amusement upon these early gibes of his elders. He is one of the most distinguished actors in the world and has received the honor of knighthood from King George.

Sir John recently toured this country, where he introduced his striking production of the Greek tragedy, "Oedipus Rex."

FORT MIFFLIN AS IT IS TODAY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FLAG Day, which is observed on June 14 throughout the United States, has a special significance this year because it is the sesquicentennial of the adoption of our national emblem. For it was on June 14, 1777, just 150 years ago, that the Second Continental congress in Philadelphia adopted the resolution, proposed by John Adams, which said:

Resolved, That the Flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation.

Thus did the flag come into being. Its inception is one of our favorite traditions in which the names of George Washington and Betsy Ross are inseparably linked. According to this tradition, the first flag, combining the stars and stripes, was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Ross at her home, 239 Arch street, Philadelphia, under the personal supervision of George Washington some time between May 23 and June 7, 1777. The flag, as designed by Washington, had six-pointed stars and it was at Mrs. Ross' suggestion that five-pointed stars were substituted.

Her design was presented to congress by a committee composed of her husband, Col. George Ross, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence from Pennsylvania; Robert Morris and Washington, who in presenting it said, "We take the star from heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

Such is the tradition which is commonly accepted, even though there is no documentary proof to back up its authenticity. Later Betsy Ross is said to have received from the government a contract for making flags and she and her daughter carried on this business until 1857. Today there are descendants of Betsy Ross, such as the young woman pictured above, Miss Jane Ross of New York, who carry on the family tradition of flag-makers.

According to another story, this first flag was designed by Francis Hopkinson of New Jersey (also a signer of the Declaration of Independence) and the itemized statement which he presented to the government in 1780 for his services in designing this flag, as well as the seal of the Department of Admiralty and of other governmental departments, is on file in the Congressional Library.

But whether Betsy Ross or Francis Hopkinson was the designer, as well as a number of other details connected with the origin of the flag over which there is dispute, is ever settled conclusively, the fact remains that June 14, 1777, was the date upon which the American flag officially came into existence, and that is the reason for the observance of Flag day. It has special significance this year, too, because the United States Flag association, of which President Coolidge is honorary president, has launched a campaign for a million members through the formation of "sesquicentennial living flags" throughout the nation. The United States Flag association came into being through the efforts of Col. James A. Moss, U. S. A. (retired), who served through three wars under the Stars and Stripes and who is director general of the association. The founders of it are thirteen in number, typifying the thirteen stripes in the flag, and include prominent men and women representing all races, creeds and political affiliation in the United States. The national council consists of the governors of the 48 states in the Union, typifying the 48 stars in the flag. The association, founded for the promotion of reverence for the flag and the ideals and institutions for which it stands, hopes to bring about in this sesquicentennial year a "patriotic revival" through the formation of "sesquicentennial living flags" on Flag day.

MISS JANE ROSS

During the 150 years of its history the American flag has attracted to it various symbolic names—Old Glory, Stars and Stripes, Red, White and Blue, the National Standard, the Starry Flag, the Flag of the Free, the Rainbow of Hope, the Colors, the Ensign, and the Star Spangled Banner. The last is perhaps the favorite one since it is also the name of our national anthem. That name for it was first used in 1814 and associated with it are the names of Fort Mifflin, Md., and Francis Scott Key.

That, too, is one of the familiar traditions of American history but there is no dispute about the facts connected with naming the flag "the Star Spangled Banner" as there is in the case of the origin of the banner. During the War of 1812 a British expedition set out to "cut the nation in two" by moving up the Chesapeake bay, capturing Washington and Baltimore and from this strategic position operating north and south. Washington was captured and the capitol burned. But when the British fleet moved against Baltimore it found a stout defender of that city in the form of Fort Mifflin.

During the bombardment of the fort Francis Scott Key, a young Maryland lawyer, was detained on board one of the British ships to which he had gone seeking the release of a friend who had been taken prisoner by the British. All during the night Key watched the bombardment. At dawn he peered through the mist and smoke to see if the fort still held out or if its guns had been silenced and it had been forced to surrender. To his delight he saw that "our flag was still there." So he sat down and wrote the words of the immortal song on the back of an old envelope.

The original "Star Spangled Banner," the flag which flew over Fort Mifflin that memorable night is still preserved in the National museum in Washington. It was made by Mrs. Mary Pickersgill of Baltimore, whose grandmother, Rebecca Young, is said to have made "the first flag of the Revolution under General Washington's direction," although her descendants who have preserved the story do not specify which flag this "first" one was. In its present state of preservation the Star Spangled Banner is 32 by 29 feet. It has 15 stripes and an equal number of stars. It was one of the famous "15 Stars and Stripes" flags authorized by congress in 1794, since there were then only 15 states in the Union. It was one of these "15 Stars and Stripes" flags which flew from the mast of the U. S. S. Constitution, "Old Ironsides," and under which Oliver Hazard Perry fought in his famous naval battle on Lake Erie.

Nor has the memory of Key been forgotten. He died in Baltimore in 1843 and he lies buried in Frederick, Md., the town made famous by the tradition of Barbara Fritchie and her defiance of "Shoot if you must this old gray head, but spare your country's flag." In 1914 congress made an appropriation for a monument at Fort Mifflin to stand as a memorial to Key and the American soldiers and sailors who beat off the British attack. This monument was dedicated on Flag day in 1922 with President Harding delivering the principal address.

The Sixty-eighth congress in 1925 appropriated the sum of $50,000 for the restoration of Fort Mifflin under the direction of the secretary of war and "its permanent preservation as a national park and perpetual national memorial shrine as the birthplace of the immortal 'Star Spangled Banner.'" This work is now going on, with the fort itself being restored and the buildings around it being torn down to make place for a beautiful park. In the picture above, showing Fort Mifflin as it is today, the flag-staff is said to be the same one which the flag that inspired Francis Scott Key, flew from it a "Star Spangled Banner" still waves.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

SANDMAN'S OBJECTIONS

It was quite late and Nick and Nancy were in their two little white beds.

They were sleepy, for they had been playing hard all day, but they wouldn't admit that to Daddy, because they were afraid he wouldn't tell them his usual evening story.

Of course, they occasionally did fall asleep before the end of a story, but then that happened very seldom and was an accident.

Daddy saw without being told how sleepy they were, so he decided to tell them the story about old Mr. Sandman, who lives forever and who sees every night that all the little children in the world rub their eyes and then crawl into their snug, comfy beds.

So Daddy began:

"Once the Queen of the Fairies was getting ready for a very fine ball."

"She told all the little fairies that they must go to bed as soon as she left them, for even little fairies have to sleep, too."

"But the little fairies were wide awake and also feeling very naughty, for they thought it would be such fun to play for hours and hours, for the queen would not be home until midnight."

"So they began to plan the game they would play first. They decided on 'hide and seek,' as it would be such an especially wide-awake game."

"They romped and raced about, hiding in this flower and that, stealing under the leaves, dodging behind the trunks of the trees and playing such jolly pranks that old Mr. Owl, who was roosting in the branches of an oak, laughed right out loud."

"Did you ever hear an owl laugh? Well, it is a very queer sort of laugh, and the fairies had to stop their game and laugh at Mr. Owl's laughter."

"But Mr. Sandman never goes to balls or parties of any kind, for he knows how hard children have been playing all day and how much they need their cozy beds at night."

"He had just started on his nightly rounds to see that all his little friends were going quickly into the land of sweet dreams when he spied the little fairies playing on the mossy grass in the moonlight."

"He said to himself, 'Here is some work for me to do,' and without being seen he waved in the air his magic nightcap.

Hide and Seek.

"One by one the little fairies yawned and rubbed their sleepy eyes, and the game became quieter and quieter."

"Finally one very brave fairy—for it is brave to admit you are sleepy—said:

"I must lie down on this bed of moss; I am so sleepy.' Soon all the little fairies followed suit and dropped off into the Land of Nod to dream of the other fairies that live in all the countless stars."

"When Mr. Sandman saw them all sleeping soundly he winked his right eye, which meant he felt very pleased, and said to himself:

"Now I must see that some more of the little tots have pleasant dreams." "But I do object when people speak of me in a mean way, or rather when they speak to children so that they hate me."

"Sometimes they say in such an unkind fashion to children:

"I guess Old Man Sandman is around," and they say it so that the children feel quite uncomfortable."

"There is more than one way of saying a thing. I object to anything that is said in a mean, making-fun spirit."

And just then, sure enough, Daddy looked and saw that Nick and Nancy had both fallen fast asleep.

Helped Him Out

After dinner the other evening in a Paris cafe a Turk who was an enthusiastic partisan of the new ways of life in his own country was explaining that, in his opinion, marriage as practiced in Christian lands was the only method of mating which furnished a solid basis for society.

"Yes," he concluded, "I am a firm believer in mono—mono—" And at this point, although he spoke French with facility, he could not think of the word he wanted. Whereupon his French host came to his rescue.

"Monotony," said the latter.

Big Septic Tank Explodes In Ocean Beach

Photograph Reproduced Through Courtesy "San Diego Union"

Shortly before noon last Saturday the huge septic tank at the foot of Bacon street and West Point Loma boulevard exploded with a great roar, rocking the neighborhood, wrecking the thick concrete covering and seriously injuring H. F. Page, a street railway bus driver, who had just stepped on top of the tank which forms the sidewalk at the junction. The terrific force of the explosion threw Mr. Page high in the air and he landed about ten feet away in a depression of the embankment, falling heavily on some big boulders and sustaining severe fractures of the right knee and thigh bones. Patrolmen Donley and Mead and Lifeguard Calvin Burns of the Ocean Beach police sub-station, were quickly on the scene and the injured bus driver was removed to Mercy hospital, where he is slowly recovering. Mr. Page resides with his family in Pacific Beach.

Just previous to the explosion Motorman Page had stopped his bus at the customary junction terminal near the street car track and only a few feet from the tank. One passenger, Mr. A. A. Sutton of 3545 Texas street, remained aboard, while Driver Page went over to investigate smoke issuing from a manhole and he had hardly reached the concrete covering when the tank blew up, scattering huge blocks of asphalt and stone and bending and twisting the big iron girders. Mr. Sutton rushed to the injured driver's assistance and soon help arrived from all sides. Various theories are advanced as to the cause of the explosion, the most accepted being spontaneous combustion of rubbish and excess of gases due to improper vents. Motorman Page does not smoke and there were no electric wires directly connected with the tank, which is already undergoing the necessary repairs.

Hogs Get Barley Diet

(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Approximately 50,000,000 bushels of barley will be fed to farm animals in the United States this year if the present crop outlook is fulfilled. Of this amount a trifle over one-half, or 50.9%, according to the figures compiled by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, is consumed by hogs. Next to them, horses eat the most barley, or 17.7% of all barley fed to farm animals. Then 11.9% is fed to cattle, mostly to dairy cows in the form of barley chop. Farm poultry flocks get away with another 10.5%, leaving 9% to be fed to sheep and used for miscellaneous feed purposes. Barley is the chief competitor of corn as live-stock feed and is especially important in the northern corn belt and Pacific coast states, according to the Foundation's experts.

SCHLATTER

Written for "The Beach News" By D. C. CROSBY, Ocean Beach.

This wonderful being came to the gate every morning at sunrise for forty days, and stood there bare headed in the sun until it went down, doing nothing else but healing the sick.

Next morning he did not appear as usual, and Mr. Snow went in the cottage to see if he was sick; nothing had been disturbed, even the bed seemed not to have been slept in, but on the pillow was a note that said, "The Master calls." It now dawned upon Mr. Snow that he was mistaken in thinking this stranger was his old partner, he did not admit that was his name, did not talk a word about old times, or new. Perhaps he had been entertaining an Angel unaware. Who can tell?

When it became known that the healer was gone, there was almost a riot because he had left them unhealed. Instead of erecting a lasting monument to his memory, in gratitude for those who had been healed, those selfish ones who failed to benefit, turned against him and said things in spite. Such are humans.

Thus ended this strange chapter unsolved. When we read of similar things in the gospels, we accept it as truth, but there is a class of knoekers who try in every way to discount all spiritual phenomena of this day as something evil. "By their works ye shall know them."

There have been many accounts published concerning this man. (If it were a man) and the many places where he has been seen since, but when run down they have proven to be blind trails. The fact is, he has never been seen since that last sunset in North Denver, nor will be.

Ever since that time I have taken great interest in the case, and noted all I could find concerning it that I considered reliable, and I want to record them before they are lost and forgotten. I have other items on the subject, but will not add them to this account.

$262,896,309 Grain Export— Wheat and Flour Top List

The value of grains and grain products exported from the United States in the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1926, is placed at $262,896,309 by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation in a survey of the situation just issued. Wheat and flour topped the list, making up nearly two-thirds of the total. Other exports in the order of value were barley, corn, oats, rye and oatmeal and rolled oats.

Investigation of the export figures makes Canada appear as the second largest receiver of American grain. This is due to the fact that much of the grain is shipped via the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river and is cleared to Canadian ports. The bulk of it, however, is destined for Europe. The leading buyer of American grain was Great Britain, with a record of 18 per cent of the total export. Next in order, following Canada, were the Netherlands, Cuba, Germany, Belgium, Mexico and Italy.
